

REAL HAIR SAVER

Found at Last—Shows Result in Three Days, Says Local Druggist.

If you are rapidly losing your hair and fear baldness Wilfred F. Root invites you to make a three days' test of Parisian Sage. If it does not stop the excessive loss of hair and make your hair and scalp look and feel at least 100 per cent better, he will return your money.

Hundreds of men and women have written telling of the phenomenal results obtained by using Parisian Sage. People who were bald say they now have hair in their beautiful hair. Others who have had dandruff for years say they got a clean, healthy scalp after just a few applications of this splendid treatment.

No matter whether you are bothered with falling hair, prematurely gray hair, dry, dull and brittle hair, oily, greasy, stringy hair, dandruff or itching scalp, this well-known local druggist invites you to try Parisian Sage at his risk. If it succeeds the cost is nothing. No strings or red tape in this money-back offer. If your hair is worth saving, Parisian Sage is worth trying, and a large bottle is inexpensive at your favorite drug or toilet counter.

Results of Work Past Nine Months to Be Shown Saturday

SMALL ADMIS. ON FEE TO BE CHARGED

Open to Public in Afternoon in High School Building—List of Clubs and Leaders—Prizes Offered by Grange and Board of Trade.

The Brattleboro Home and School Industrial League will hold an exhibit in the high school building Saturday of this week from 2 to 4 o'clock. At this time there will be exhibited the results of the league's work for the past nine months. It will be remembered that the league was formed last January, with the following aims:

1. To increase interest in and knowledge of gardening, cooking, and other practical occupations.
2. To learn to make profitable use of leisure time.
3. To co-ordinate home and school work.
4. To increase a love and appreciation of nature through the observation and study of birds, trees and flowers.
5. To aid in a realization of the importance of profitable employment.

The competition is open to all boys and girls attending the Brattleboro public schools. Prizes have been offered by the Grange and the board of trade.

On Saturday entries will be made in all the classes. The articles entered will be put in place in the morning and awards will be made by the judges. In the afternoon the exhibit will be open to the public upon the payment of a small admission fee.

The admission money will be used to defray expenses. It is expected that there will be some articles for sale, for members of the league have the right to sell such articles as they wish.

The various clubs and their subdivisions, with leaders in each, are as follows:

- Nature—(1) Birds. Leaders, Georgina McKee, Gertrude Munson, Leonora Wright; (2) wild flowers and trees. Leaders, Minnie Rawson, Grace Nugent, Pauline Morris.
- Agriculture—(1) Vegetables. Leaders, Sadie Winchester, Nellie Prouty, Mrs. Alice Morse, Pauline Morris; (2) cultivated flowers. Leaders, Clara Martin, Luey Akley, Mary Croker; (3) potatoes. Leader, E. B. Smith.
- Poultry—Leader, Helen R. Martin.
- Household arts—(1) cooking. Leaders, Elizabeth Hunter, Jessie Hanson, Martina Pike; (2) canning. Leader, Florence M. Wellman; (3) sewing. Leaders, Nellie Penn, Mrs. F. I. Swift, Leona Wright and May Douglas.
- Camera—Leader, Ethel Eddy.

VERDICT FOR ONE CENT.

Nominal Damages in Slander Case in Rutland County Court.

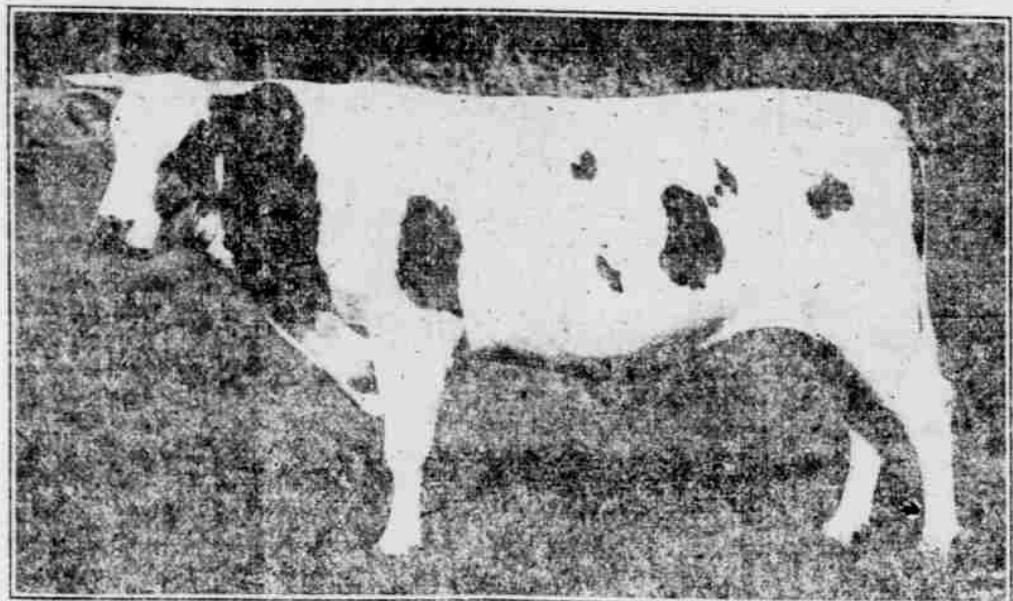

RUTLAND, Oct. 3.—Helen Poldbiel, skil of Danby suffered to the extent of one cent in reputation and personal feelings because of the uncomplimentary terms in which Anna Mieniatowski, also of Danby, made reference to her one June at a christening, in the opinion of a Rutland county jury. The Poldbiel woman sued Anna Mieniatowski to recover $1,000 for slander and after a day and a half had been spent in the trial of the case the jury at noon Saturday reached a verdict permitting the plaintiff to recover damages of one cent.

DEMONSTRATION CAR.

U. M. V. College of Agriculture To Run One Over Rutland Road.

During the week of October 23d, a potato production demonstration car will travel over that portion of the Rutland railroad in the State of Vermont, under the auspices of the extension service of the college of agriculture of the University of Vermont and with the co-operation of the Rutland railroad, the state commissioner of agriculture and the various farm bureaus along the line of the railroad.

There will be a newspaper coach equipped with a lantern for lectures and demonstrational purposes, and a baggage car which will contain a potato planter, a potato sprayer, a potato digger, a potato sorter, spraying materials, specimens showing various potato diseases, sacks and barrels illustrating the various methods of marketing and such other demonstrational equipment as may be needed. The principal topics treated will be seed selection, tillage, harvesting, spraying and marketing of potatoes.

The instructional staff will consist of Dean J. L. Hills of the College of Agriculture; Thomas Bradley, director of the Vermont Agricultural Extension Service; Hon. E. S. Brigham, State Commissioner of Agriculture; Magnus Tolstrom, plant marketing agent; Prof. B. F. Lutman of the plant pathology department; C. H. Jones, chemist of the Vermont Experimental station; Prof. R. T. Burdick of the department of agronomy, and W. H. Crockett, editor of University publications. County agents J. W. Dana of Chittenden county, J. E. Carrigan of Addison county, M. C. Otis of Windsor county, A. W. Swenson of Windham county and F. C. Shaw of Bennington county will accompany the cars through their respective counties. J. A. Proctor, traveling freight agent for the Rutland railroad, will also accompany the party.

These meetings will deal exclusively with the potato crop in its various phases, and its relation and importance in diversified agriculture of Vermont.

"Methuselah," says the categorical reply to a newspaper query, "was 187 years old when his first child was born and lived 782 years longer, making his total age 969 years. The next oldest person mentioned in the Bible is Jared, who was 162 years old when his first child was born, and lived 800 years longer, making his total age 962. Adam lived to be 930 years old; Seth, 912; Enos, 905; Kenan, 910, and Noah, 950."

bull, King Segis, Pontiac Konigen, which the Dutchland farm of Brockton, Mass. recently secured for $35,000, also a picture of Fred F. Field, head of the Dutchland farm.

This bull was born April 6, 1912. The character of his ancestry is expressed by the average production of his three nearest dams, which is: Butter, 38.26 pounds; milk, 694.033 pounds. His dam is K. P. Diana Pieterje, owned by Oliver Cabana, Jr., of Pine Grove farms, Elma Center, N. Y.

The price paid for King Segis is said to be the highest price ever paid for a dairy bull at private or public sale. The Register says, in part: "An event of great interest and importance to the Holstein-Friesian breeding industry took place Sept. 14, when the Fred F. Field Holstein company of Brockton, Mass., purchased of Mrs. Frank A. Smith of Brainardhurst, Alexander, N. Y., the four-year-old bull, King Segis, Pontiac Konigen 97988, paying $35,000 therefor."

"The price paid—$35,000—seems a large sum, but these figures are declared absolutely bona fide by the parties concerned in the transaction. Mrs. Smith considers the bull a peerless animal and sells him to give him the opportunity demanded by his great breeding; and

A PERMANENT FORCE OF 20,000 AIRCRAFT

Proposal of Lord Montagu of a Cost That Would Be More Than $75,000,000.

Lord Montagu of Beaulieu, speaking recently at Edinburgh, Scotland, on aircraft policy, said that when peace came the British air service must be the last to be reduced. A mild invasion might not come, but by means of one hundred airships it might come on a scale infinitely larger, which it would need all the British air force to repel. Of 2,000 miles of coastline at least 1,000 would have to be defended by aircraft. If in the country a permanent force of 20,000 aeroplanes existed the cost would not be more than $75,000,000. He also said that England had reached the position where the air board should be given control at least of the supply side, and there should be one united air service for the country. He looked forward to an imperial air service, England should not only be strong and well armed, but the air service must take front rank in protecting the empire.

Lord Montagu, who made this speech before the most recent destruction of two invading Zeppelins, referred to the destruction of the ship at Chulley on Sept. 2 and remarked that approximately 2,000 miles of coastline at least 1,000 would have to be defended by aircraft. He thought the country should be able to look back on a more creditable record, and he hoped that in future the government would strengthen its defenses that no Zeppelin and could take place over British shores excepting at great peril and loss to the enemy. He complained that no sooner was the airship on the ground at Chulley than a service, which had nothing whatever to do with airship construction, but acting no doubt under directions of a higher power, proceeded to cut up, dissect and investigate the remains of their victim. That showed how chaotic the present arrangements of the air service must be.

Lord Montagu desired to see before long the whole air service amalgamated and made into a much bigger and better organization than at present. While priority should be given to the army at the front in respect to airship provision that ought not to be incompatible with adequately supplying the country with airship equipment. There had been slackness in the past, but now at last the country had awakened to realize the importance of warfare in the air. There was a new and very fine type of aeroplane, fitted with a powerful engine, which alone had brought down at the front twenty-seven Fokkers in a short time. In this matter, as in respect to munitions and contraband and other things, it was the pressure of intelligent public opinion and pressure of intelligent newspapers which had compelled the government to devote more attention to certain branches of the war which they had not hitherto considered.

"A special news despatch from Brockton, Sept. 20, announced that King Segis Pontiac Konigen would travel in a private car from Alexander, N. Y., late that week, to his new home, arriving in time to be exhibited at the Brockton fair, and that he had already been insured for his full value. Manager Earl D. Upton of Dutchland farms was to take personal charge of the shipping arrangements and two men would be in constant attendance upon the great and valuable bovine aristocrat."

PAPER CONCERN REORGANIZED.

Missisquoi Co. of Sheldon Springs Now Headed by George C. Gill.

ST. ALBANS, Oct. 3.—The reorganization of the Missisquoi Pulp & Paper company of Sheldon Springs, has just been announced. Officers under the reorganization are as follows: President, George C. Gill, of the Holyoke National bank; treasurer and general manager, Archibald P. Ramages, vice president and secretary, Herbert E. Raymond. These officers with Fred A. Dugles constitute the board of directors. The company is now improving its pulp mill, and when this is completed will have an up-to-date equipment of the highest efficiency. The company manufactures daily 25 tons of white blanks, white and tinted blot, and specialties in card boards.

Private Banks

Having taken up some of the main differences between savings and commercial banks, we have now to consider three new classes of banks namely, private, state, and National.

Originally all banks were private, that is to say, unincorporated. The earliest bankers were the goldsmiths. They generally had safe places in which to keep their gold, and people would come to them to leave their valuables much as they now come to make use of THE VERMONT NATIONAL Bank's safe deposit boxes. The goldsmith would give a receipt for the money or other valuables, and would often make this out to order or to bearer. In the first case the receipt would be the substantial equivalent of a modern check, and in the second case the same as a modern bank note or bill. Either could circulate from hand to hand and take the place of money.

Gradually the thing grew more common. The goldsmiths began to have such receipts already printed and in round sums and to realize that they need not keep all such deposits on hand but could lend part to borrowers. Then other people besides goldsmiths began to go into this new business. And for a long time anyone could issue notes. But gradually it was seen that it was necessary to restrict this power of issuing what would serve as money, and today private bankers rarely issue notes. Some of them do most of the things which an incorporated commercial bank does, receiving deposits, letting depositors draw checks on them, etc. But the majority of our private banks today are of a different sort. The main business of houses like J. P. Morgan & Co. or Lee Higginson & Co. is of the investment type, promoting new corporations, acting as middlemen in the sale of stocks and bonds, and making direct loans from their own or their friends' resources to corporations and governments. In these activities they are often left free from governmental regulation, and treated just like any private business. But to an increasing extent they are subject to the same rules and treated in the same way as the state banks that we shall consider in our next article.
